

Children's Librarian's Report for October 2013

Story Times have been going along nicely. I am incorporating the letters of the alphabet along with seasonal and holiday themes. Becky Cristman has been helping out with shelving and story times and is a great help.

In October one of the local Head Start programs met here and asked me to tell them about the library services. I introduced them to the Story Boxes that Mid-York has to lend. There are 95 theme-related boxes with a manual, puppets and/or stuffed toys, and 10 books. Since then, one of the teachers has been borrowing them for the students.

This month I was invited to a Head Start class to read stories about Community Helpers. There was an unplanned fire drill in the middle of my visit when we all had to go outside. Luckily it was a nice day. The kids enjoyed the stories and I left library and museum brochures for the parents.
